CHEF STARVING! IMPOSSIBLE!

So Police Send Joseph Prim, Frenchman to Asylum.

After working in a kitchen nearly all his life, preparing foods and dairy concoctions, and probably thinking how he would not like to work in a boiler factory, a peculiar fancy struck Joseph Prim, a French chef, yesterday. The fancy became an obsession and he left his home, said to be 110 E. street northwest, and came to police headquarters. "I am starving to death. People are following me and trying to prevent me from eating," he told Detective Evans. The idea seemed so preposterous to headquarters men that a chef, especially a French chef, should starve to death that they decided to send him to the Washington Asylum Hospital for observation.

SUFFRAGISTS' GEMS GO IN MELTING POT

Leaders Sacrifice Gold and Silver Belongings to Help Cause in State Campaigns.

New York, March 23.—Suffragist leaders today invoked the witchery of the melting pot to turn jewelry—gold and silver thimbles, silver spoons, mugs and other precious metals of various shapes and designs—into votes for women.

Across a big crucible at the headquarters of the National American Women's Suffrage Association, 36 Fifth avenue, are written these words: "For our sisters in the campaign States."

The formal ceremony of feeding the melting pot began shortly after noon today, when Mrs. Medill McCormick, president of the association, dropped into the crucible five silver spoons of ancient workmanship she picked up during a trip in Germany.

Others followed with contributions for the suffrage cause. They included: Norman Whitely, president of the Empire State campaign committee; Mrs. James Leese Laidlaw, the women's suffrage party; Mrs. Howard Mansfield, Equal Suffrage League; Mrs. Henry Wade Rogers, treasurer of the National American Women's Suffrage Association; and Mrs. Raymond Brown, New York State Suffrage Association.

The campaign States this year are New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Massachusetts, in each of which the question of women's right to the franchise is to be submitted to voters this fall.

Every suffrage headquarters in the country is to have its melting pot into which women may place offerings of metal articles of value for raising of campaign funds. In each campaign State the collections will be retained for the work in that State, after the metal has been turned into money at the Philadelphia mint. The contributions in other States will be divided between the States where the right is on.

CHILD ELOPERS "SEPARATED."
Grace Bowles, 15, at Home, Alston Court, 10, Sutter, Not in City.

The last chapter of the romance of Grace Bowles, 15 years old, 78 E. street northwest, and Alston Court, 10, Sutter, was closed yesterday. The girl, who had eloped with a boy, had returned to her home and the whereabouts of the boy is kept secret.

"Grace is ill in bed. She has said nothing about the case, except to give details of her detention in New York. Does she appear to miss him? Yes, I believe she does. Maybe they really love each other, but they are only children, and undoubtedly will lose their affection after awhile," Mrs. Bowles said. In New York the girl was said to have expressed a determination to elope again when an opportunity presents itself.

At Curran's home it was declared "there was no statement made by her," but it was understood he will not return to Washington.
